Line Out Press Release - November 2003 – LOPR0002

Line Out Records have recently been working in association with local young filmmaker Simon Byshe supplying the music for his latest documentary.

"Modern Day Gamer 2 – Four Kings Intel" was released on the internet on Saturday 22nd November it can be downloaded at the address <http://www.esreality.com/mdg2/>

Simon has this to say about the film: "While the original Modern Day Gamer documentary was about the growth of gaming purely as a hobby MDG2 is much more about the emergence of "professional gaming" - the people who take gaming that much more seriously. The film features interviews with top industry leader like John Romero, Sujoy Roy & professional gamer Toby Aldridge (4K^Zommy). The film for me was a quest to try and bring out what is so great about gaming and also what needs to happen before we can see it hitting the mainstream stage. I am hoping that a UK based production company will watch the film and choose to make a proper professionally made documentary about gaming. That would be a great result and could really help push gaming into the mainstream spotlight!"

Simon's previous film "Modern Day Gamer" was released to much acclaim from the gaming community being downloaded over 40,000 times in the first week.

The tracks supplied by Line Out to be used in the movie were:

- Reclaimance – Drip Fed
- Draa Valley – Interstellar Rhythm Machine
- Golden White Neon – Interstellar Rhythm Machine
- Transplant - Reincarnationfish
- Modern Technology Sucks – Ocular Sinister
- Womb – Owen Pellow

We are hoping to supply Simon with the music for his next film which will be out shortly. You can find out when the Line Out Records bands are playing by visiting <http://www.lineoutrecords.com/events/>
